about

The artist Gabriela Rudolph, born in 1986 and based in Berlin, has been developing her artistic work under the pseudonym Claire Uff since 2019.

Claire Uff's art is a celebration of the human experience, with a focal point on individuals and the exquisite nuances found in daily life. She captures her themes through clear and refined forms. Her distinctive style, cultivated over the years, is characterized by a layered use of colors, resulting in a unique expression. Claire Uff's works are less about cool, academic art calculations and more about the joy of painting: as an expression of the vitality and uniqueness of human nature. With her works, C. U. consciously sets a counterpoint to the mainstream of the current art scene., which increasingly seems to position itself between slick design and dystopian visions. Claire's works are not afraid to be beautiful, a rare treat for the viewer of these works.

„The beauty lies in the moment of the captured inconspicuous and in the splendour of the colourfulness with which it illuminates the room.“ - Claire Uff

artist statement

The hallmark of my work lies in its simplicity, balanced richness, and a clarity that resonates through my preferred subjects - portraiture and the portrayal of everyday small pleasures. I take the exploration of these small pleasures as an opportunity to embark on the search for an emotional intelligence. Color embodies emotion. My aspiration is to illuminate colors in a manner where, harmoniously composed, they unfurl their positive spectrum of effects on people. The objective is to engage the viewer with my work, leaving an imprint on their consciousness for a moment of contemplation and to have the Courage to smile a little.

C.V.

Born in 1986, the artist Claire Uff aka Gabriela Rudolph lives and works in Berlin. Her work has been shaped by numerous artistic influences. Her great-grandmother, a sewing master in East Berlin, taught her how to work with textiles. With her grandfather, a trained stonemason, she took drawing lessons from an early age. Her other grandfather was a writer and took photographs in his spare time. With him and his wife, she learnt compositions, working with light and an artistic approach to seemingly everyday subjects. These influences form the basis for Claire Uff's virtuoso works her ability to combine seemingly contradictory technical methods and to further explore their use.
